Letter From Our CEO

The past year has been one of pain and perseverance. Our communities and our organization has been tested in ways we could not imagine. I am so proud of our team. They responded with fortitude, resourcefulness, and an abiding commitment to caring for others. Between the patient surges, the new variants, and the unexpected complexities, we found ourselves clinging to the one part of CTH life that didn't change —our mission. Our mission is more than words on a wall.

Our mission is about a trusting partnership with the communities we serve. When like-minded organizations come together for the common goal of improving health, it is remarkable what can happen. This past year we've taken short-term actions to help us achieve a long-term vision —to create a healthier future for all.

We know we are called to care for the sick, but we must also focus on keeping our neighbors well. CTH is committed to improving the core of what we do. We bring people, talent, technology, and compassion together to serve others. We also understand that our long-term vision requires a transformation of what we do and how we do it. We must innovate and create new thinking. At our very core CTH is about people. People in community with other people. With this driving us, we can be an instrument of hope and inspiration for all of us to live our best lives.
